Last Week's Run Report

This weeks run report. Hare; Sheep Shunter
Location ; Cassidy Pavilion Thornlie

Heroic Hero Happenings !

Accolades to Sheep Shunter for stepping in and setting the run, even though it was a bit further afield. The pack gathered at a stadium filled with athletic goings on which encouraged everyone to be sporty and fit (kind of ...)

Run instructions were somewhat interesting due to elaborate markings that the Hare explained were on the trail. Not really thinking it through, walkers (all 4 of us) and runners (a few more) set off at the usual cracking pace cracking as there was a drink stop and walkers wanted to beat the runners to it ! The trail was well marked and not too much of a challenge for the walkers. Eventually, we arrived at a garden glade with a furtive character messing about with thingsAh ...! No, not a hobo, just the Hare with his stash of beverages and lollies ! Very pleasant till a local dog walker came by saying her terrified little dogs could not go past usWHAT THE(Hashing is dangerous) With a bit of encouragement, they passed GO but did not collect $100 (thankfully, they didn't leave us a present either !)

So once the runners pack arrived we left them to it and returned on-home via underpasses and tunnels ...great for a Halloween run !

It was a really good run as was evident in the circle with scores of 9+ & 8+ on both counts. There was of course the issue of the markings seems that they were a Friday night symbol so the Hare had a few people narky about that it happens

There was a SURPRISE R A on the night, who had arrived on his metal steed, and he was just so funny a bit strict with everyone, but funny. His impersonation of the R A was Oscar material, the rest wasn't.....Charges were inflicted as usual and some Hasher had a significant (get a life) award.....Jokers, true story tellers and others had their moment and the song was sung (a bit better but I think two songs were sung at the same time ???) then it was on for a super nosh thanks to Light My Fire - Yummy and - thanks.....

On - On
